AirbagSolutions.com adds BMW and Mini to database

AirbagSolutions.com has added BMW and Mini to its lineup of automobiles covered in the airbag service database.

"BMW is an important addition to our data. The replacement requirement information currently available is unclear, contradictory and, in some cases, simply incorrect," says Douglas Gan, President and COO of Airbag Solutions. "We are committed to presenting this critical OEM data in the clearest, most concise and understandable format possible."

AirbagSolutions.com is a Web-based database, accessed by subscription, and covers vehicles from 1988 through 2010. The database is presented in a unique copyrighted photographic format rather than drop-down screens or pencil sketches so users see which components are required and where they are located. This allows users to virtually eliminate supplements, simplify airbag repairs and reduce cycle times.

Additional information including light resetting, wire repair and possible peripheral damage are also included in the database, making it the most complete airbag service resource available.

"Airbag Solutions has done an excellent job in consolidating the manufacturers' information in an easy to use format," states an insurance industry expert. "The vehicle search function is very user friendly and the actual photographs of each component are extremely helpful in identifying which part is being referenced. It was also great to see that you have recently added the BMW information and some additional 2010 models."
